Gauri Khan shares her picks from Maison&Objet 2018

Vogue India | February 1, 2018

The designer was in Paris to launch her debut collection for Jaipur Rugs

In November, designer Gauri Khan took to Instagram to announce Tattvam, her handwoven rug collection created in collaboration with Jaipur Rugs, which was slated to be launched at this year's Maison&Objet. The collection, hand-knotted by the local women artisans using silk and wool rugs, breaks free from the glamorous metal-accented designs that Khan is known for.

This week, at the design fair in Paris, she again chose the social media platform to announce another career update—her upcoming collaboration with lighting expert Regis Mathieu of French lighting company Mathieu Lustrerie. Mathieu, who has illuminated Vadodara's Laxmi Vilas Palace with his iconic chandelier designs, will collaborate with Khan on a bespoke chandelier in rock crystal.

Khan, who picks Maison&Object as her favourite design fair, is known to annually make a visit to Paris. The savvy designer shares with Vogue her favourite design moments from Maison&Objet 2018.

"I always look forward to the Vista Alegre x Christian Lacroix collaboration. This year too, their porcelain collection was bold, vibrant and fun, and a must-have for fashionable homes."
